A Guide for WATT Handicappers

David L. Christopher

One great benefit of the Winning at the Track online program is that it provides information that other racing fans will never see. Horseracing involves pari-mutuel betting. The wagers go into a pool and are then divided by those who are correct. In effect, you are betting against other handicappers, not any casino "house odds" that are stacked against you. The potential returns posted on the tote board reflect the opinions of others, not the probability of winning.

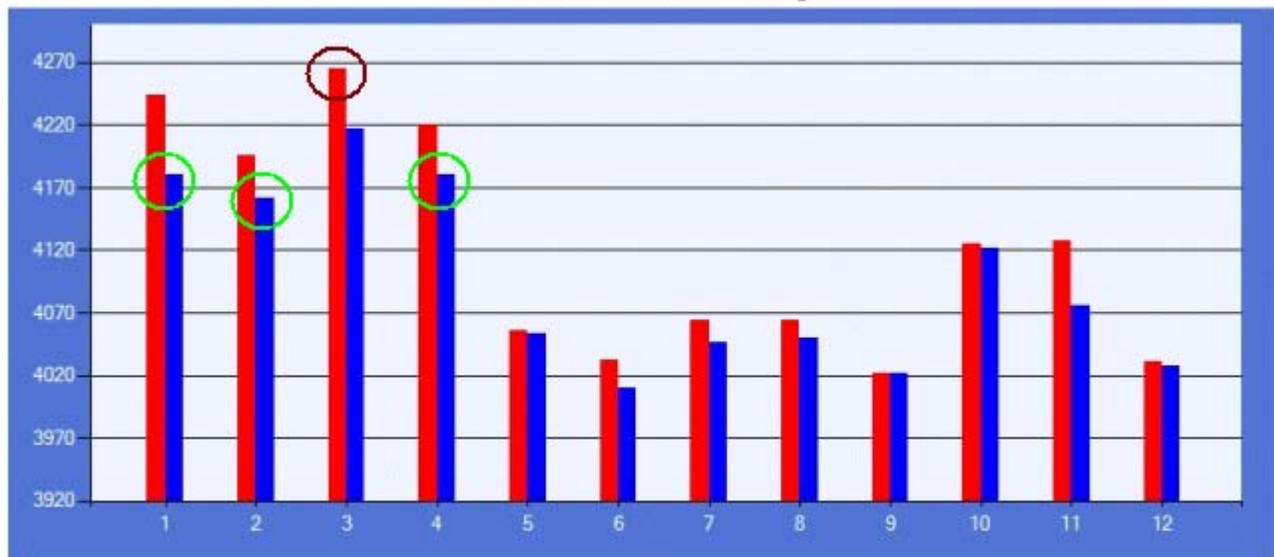

Here is Race 9, a 6-furlong sprint at Hawthorne Race Course in Illinois on March 13th. This contest had a 12-horse field and, of course, these WATT selections were not random in any way. Below were the Best-4 PM Ratings for the contest with very few changes needed in the handicap. The "plus signs" indicated that all four were "stick-outs" versus the rest of the field. This was also obvious on the main graphic screen as well.

Best-4 Summary

Hawthorne IL Mar 13, 2015

Pr	PP	Name	$	Notes	Odds	PM Rating
9th	6f
3	3	LAST TEARS		98/97	9:2	4264+
1	1	BUSHIDO		90/93	10:1	4244+
4	4	SWEEPING CHANGE		88/49	12:1	4221+
2	2	KEEP ON SHINING		88/75	5:1	4196+

Best/2nd-Best PM Rating

PACESETTERS: 3, 1

Risk Profile: Poor Fair Good

Clearly, #3 Last Tears, had a pace advantage, which was a good reason for bettors to make him one of the favorites at post time. Also, #4 Sweeping Change showed a pace line last time out (5½ furlongs) that had him 15 lengths behind at every point in the race. Many racing fans and other computer programs rely only on the last pace line rather than a horse's complete history. If this 6f distance happened to be more to his liking, he had the potential to win.

In essence, there were two possible outcomes: #3 Last Tears would be the winner and two of the remaining three would probably create a healthy trifecta. Otherwise, he would collapse and the other three would very likely produce an enormous payoff.

Last Tears was declared the key horse. If jockey Timothy Thornton could avoid a speed duel, victory would be all but assured. The three remaining contenders were long shots: #1 Bushido was more than 6-to-1; #2 Keep on Shining was 6-to-1, and #4 Sweeping Change was nearly 30-to-1. The bottom line: ALWAYS pay close attention to the odds being offered.

Here are two suggestions when handicapping any race with three or four WATT stick-outs such as this:

- 1) Review each contender carefully to be absolutely sure it deserves its PM Rating. In this example, all four had a legitimate chance to win.
- 2) Any horse with post time odds of 8-to-1 or more should always be considered as part of an exotics wager (some WATT handicappers, including this author, prefer 6-to-1). If any horse is an exceptional long shot (20-to-1 or more) he should be played, if only as a small win/place wager.

The result was not totally unexpected. And the obvious $2 trifecta box ($12) was spectacular.
